

SACRED TEXT EXHIBIT DETAILS FOR 2017

Once again we have an exceptional opportunity for the Sacred Text exhibit! The Public Library is offering us space so that we can take advantage of weekend foot traffic—as well as those attending because of Faith Fest promotions. I don't know the exact placement in the Library because of construction, but Lisa Maiden has promised us the best of what's available.

The venue is for a public viewing of actual texts on Saturday, 18 Nov from 10:00 am–12:00 pm. Do you have a special book or collection that you would like to show to the wider faith community so they could learn about your Tradition? We would love to have you join us.

If at all possible, the library would like to have us available with our books to answer questions about them and our Traditions. They will have someone from the library staff on duty just to monitor things and direct traffic to the display. Of course, I will be there the entire time as well. I know this is a very short time for viewing but it allows a real teaching moment. Last year we had many substantive conversations with library patrons.

So here's all we need to make this all happen:

- Let me know if you plan to participate in this opportunity. You can reach me @ (270) 683-1462 or hermitstuff@bellsouth.net .
- If you are willing to loan us your Sacred Text for Saturday, 18 Nov, but do not have someone from your community able to attend, please let me know that as well. We'd still like to feature your text if you can drop it off to the Library in care of Kevin or Lisa.
- I am willing to pick up books earlier in that week if need be. I will treat your book with great respect.
- Let me know if I need to contact someone else not on my mailing list.

Thank you for your help,
Claudia
